Taking action

0:11 / 0:34 1x

The artists in this section are all about action. You'll hear from Lorraine O'Grady about the persona she adopted to call out discrimination in the art world, and then from Xiao Lu on how she launched her career with a bang (literally). Beyond their bold projects, we'll look at human heart-shaped protective gear designed for protests and see bodies in choreographed motion.

As you consider each of these works, we invite you to think about what effect art can have on the world. Can art move individuals, industries, even entire nations to action?
