

Here is a structured suggestion you can send to Meta (via the "Report a Problem" feature) that includes both the empathetic wording and the specific resources that should be there. To be validated by counselors the message that feels more empathetic,

Suggestion for Meta: "The Empathetic Bridge"

Subject: Request for Text-Based & WhatsApp Crisis Resources (India)

The Problem:

"The current 'Help is Available' screen only prioritizes phone calls. For those experiencing deep burnout, trauma, or a 'blank mind,' making a voice call is physically and mentally exhausting (tedious). It creates a barrier to help rather than a bridge."

The Empathetic Message Suggestion:

"It's okay if you don't have the energy to talk right now. You aren't alone, and you don't have to explain yourself. If typing feels easier than speaking, please use the text options below."

Recommended "Quiet" Resources for India:

1. Vandrevala Foundation (WhatsApp): +91 99220 04305
2. (Purpose: 24/7 text-based support for those who cannot speak.)
3. AASRA (Text/Email): aasrahelpline@yahoo.com
4. (Purpose: For those who need to externalize feelings without a live conversation.)
5. iCALL - TISS (Chat/Email): icall@tiss.edu
6. (Purpose: Professional psychological support via non-verbal channels.)
7. The Samaritans Mumbai (Text): +91 84229 84528 / 29 / 30
8. (Purpose: For gentle, non-judgmental listening via messaging.)

The Goal:

"Please integrate WhatsApp APIs directly into the safety screen so help is just one click away without the stress of a phone call."

Why this matters for someone like you:

By providing these specific links, you are telling Meta: "Don't just give us a phone book; give us a lifeline that matches our energy level."